Two-bedroom, two-bathroom apartment in Benidorm, in a private complex with a swimming pool, sauna, and terrace. This property is designed for those who want to experience the Mediterranean with tranquility, style, and a touch of exclusivity, enjoying a well-maintained environment where well-being is part of daily life, not just holidays. A haven in the best part of Benidorm Benidorm has many facets, and this property is located in one of the most desirable: the peaceful, residential, and well-organized Benidorm, where you can enjoy everything the city has to offer, but from the security and tranquility of a private complex. This isn't your typical short-stay apartment, but rather a place that feels like a refuge, a space to return to after a day at the beach, a stroll, or leisure activities, closing the door and immediately noticing that you've entered a different atmosphere. Living here means having the energy of Benidorm at your fingertips—its beaches, its promenade, its array of restaurants, terraces, and activities—while simultaneously having a home that protects you from the noise and excess. The city pulsates nearby, but you set your own pace: there are days for city outings, days for the beach, days for the pool, and days for simply staying within the complex. This freedom of choice is one of the great luxuries of this type of property. A private complex that feels like a club The complex where this apartment is located feels like a small private club: controlled access, an exclusive atmosphere, and spaces designed for truly enjoying leisure time. Everything is organized so that the homeowner can step outside and, without even leaving the house, have easy access to areas where they can unwind, socialize, or simply breathe fresh air at their leisure. The swimming pool becomes a central hub of daily life. In summer, it's almost impossible to resist starting or ending the day with a swim, some sunbathing, or a relaxed chat with other residents. In quieter times, it transforms into a peaceful space, perfect for reading, enjoying a coffee, or simply letting time drift by. The surrounding community creates a sense of privacy, like being at a resort, but knowing that it's all part of your own home. The sauna adds a touch of well-being that makes all the difference. It's not just another amenity, but a small ritual that can be integrated into daily life: after a long day, a workout, or a day in front of the computer, spending a few minutes in the sauna releases all the tension. It's a warm and quiet space where the body relaxes and the mind clears, and where every use feels like a gift you give yourself. A home that adapts to every stage of life. Inside the apartment, the feeling is that of a well-designed space meant to be lived in fully, not just for passing through. The two bedrooms allow each person to have their own corner for rest, privacy, and disconnection. It's a home that works equally well for a couple who want an extra bedroom for guests or for working from home, as for a small family looking for something comfortable, modern, and well-located. The two bathrooms provide a convenience that is noticeable in daily life, especially when sharing a home or frequently hosting guests. The typical arguments about shower times, morning waits, and disruptions to routines are avoided. Everything flows more naturally, which translates into easier cohabitation and an overall sense of order and comfort. The overall layout allows for a clear separation between living areas and sleeping areas. The social area of the house invites sharing: conversations, meals, laughter, plans. The more private area is reserved for silence, sleep, and calm. This spatial arrangement makes the apartment feel harmonious and very livable, capable of supporting different stages of life without feeling inadequate.
